Erosion Control Fabric is a perfect product for use where soil erosion in open areas may be a problem. There are many applications that could potentially benefit from this type of product. These include preventing the movement of sand dunes, sides of driveways and roads which are prone to wind and rain erosion. The net like nature of the product helps prevent the wind and rain from gouging the soil surface. It also protects new plantings of plants and can help hold onto mulch and decorative media by preventing it from washing or blowing away.

It is a very environmentally friendly product which is fully biodegradable. Once the soil is stabilised and new plant growth has occurred the Erosion Control Fabric will eventually breakdown and disappear leaving a very natural environment. There are three grades - a fine, medium and coarse version for different applications.
