Precision Coir has been designed for use in finer applications where long fibres are not wanted. This coir product has been double sieved to remove all of the particles below 1mm and then resieved to remove any long fibres that may still be present in the media. The end product is a fine, consistent coir pith which is friable and suitable for applications such as cell tray filling and fine potting. The product is low in salts and root growth is excellent in this media.

There is a range of product sizes available from the 4.5kg bales through to a variety of slab sizes and briquettes. All coir products are produced under the Dutch RHP standards for growing media therefore ensuring a high quality product for your plants.
